AWARD GRAMMAR SCHOOL DIPLOMAS

Half a Hundred Children Get Certificates which will Secure for them Admission to the High School.

Fifty one boys and girls received Grammar School diplomas at the annual commencement exercises in the Meade building this afternoon. All expect to enter the High School in the fall.

An attractive program composed of the afternoon's exercises. A distinctive feature was the rendering of "The Courtship of Miles Standish". It was given by the pupils of the Eighth Grade, all in costume, and one of the most enjoyable playlets ever produced by the children of the Grammar Schools. Other numbers on the program were these recitations, "Giving Thanks", Pauline Lestz; "The Wood Box", Emil Neusch; "Jane's Graduation", Luella Watson. Marie Snyder read the W. C. T. U. prize essay on "The Boy who Smokes and Swears". The address to the young graduates was delivered by Rev. W. R. Glen, pastor of the Gettysburg United Brethren church.

Supervising Principal W. A. Burgoon presented the diplomas and awarded the prizes. Elsie Tawney, with the highest general average for the year, 89.7, was given the book offered by Miss Benner. Martha Twining, with an average of 96.5 in deportment, was given the book offered by Miss Rummel. Robert Geiselman, of the Eighth Grade, and Martha Lestz and Evelyn Burgoon, of the Seventh Grade, all of whom were perfect in spelling for the entire year, received books offered by Miss Miller. Miss Luella McAllister presented the W. C. T. U. prize of $5.00 to Marie Snyder for the best essay on an assigned subject.

The list of graduates included Mary Applier, Georgia Aumen, Guy Beard, Gilbert Bell, Louise Bender, Lucile Bender, Elizabeth Bigham, Dorothy Bream, Helen Deardorff, Mildred Deardorff, Miriam Fiscel, Dorothy Foth, Robert Geiselman, Rex Gilbert, James Gilliland, Robert Hartley, Jeanne Heindel, Selmar Hess, Jennie Hollinger, Floranna Hoke, Emma Kadel, Sarah Kirssin, Pauline Lestz, Martha Major, Elizabeth Martin, Raymond Martin, Fred Miller, Murray Miller, Flora Mizell, Robert Morris, Emil Neusch, Anna Oyler, Helen Oyler, Hazel Robinson, Lorene Roth, Flossie Shultz, Raymond Scott, Helen Sefton, Winifred Seylar, Luther Shryock, Marie Snyder, Merle Stauffer, May Belle Lott, Katie Shultz, Martha Twining, Elsie Tawney, Robert Thompson, Luella Watson, Hazel Wavell, Joseph Williams, and George Yeatts.

GETTYSBURG HAS ITS FIRST GAME

Parade and Closing of Business Houses Mark Opening of Organized Sport in this place. Hanover Returns for its Revenge.

For the first time in its eventful history, Gettysburg to-day had the experience of having played within its borders a game of organized base ball, and it arose to the occasion nobly. Music, a parade, a general closing of business places, and other things which made the openings in other towns on Thursday so successful, were in evidence here and the town showed itself truly as being on the map of fandom.

The Citizens Band headed the parade which formed in Center Square early in the afternoon and led the column as it passed over the streets of town prior to the calling of the game which was scheduled for four o'clock. At Nixon Field all was ready for the calling of "Play Ball" by Umpire Hanks and one of the largest crowds that field ever witnessed was gathered there for the game.

Hanover's Hornets did not arrive until the early part of the afternoon, still feeling the effects of their Thursday's defeat and keen for revenge which they were determined to secure if such a thing were possible. Manager Starr had spent a busy evening and a tireless morning in getting his men in shape for the return game at Gettysburg, when he hoped to retrieve the Thursday "misfortune" and keep his charges from the foot of the ladder in the percentage column.

Not only Gettysburg and Hanover turned out for to-day's game but Adams County towns sent along their share of voters for the contest. Needless to say the majority of the crowd were strong Gettysburg adherents, though Hanover had her champions and the rooting promised to be of volume and spirit from start to finish of the game.

MANY STILL HOLD LAST YEAR WHEAT

Failed to Sell when Record Price was Attained. Farmers are now Holding for Another Upward Trend Much on Hand.

That several thousand bushels of wheat are still held on farms in the vicinity of Gettysburg is the statement by local warehouse men who say that the farmers who now have the grain are again waiting for the $1.50 figure.

Wheat to-day was quoted at $1.37, the lowest price for many weeks. It has not sold in Gettysburg for $1.50 since May 13 and it is possible that the price will not again reach that figure. Much of the Adams County wheat was sold when the mark for which all had been waiting was reached; some held for still better price, with the result that they missed their guess and the market dropped. In Chicago the drop has been fifteen cents in the last two days.

Some doubt is expressed here about wheat again going to $1.50, though a re-action from the present slump is predicted by those who are in a position to judge the probable trend of the market, and the farmers are at a loss just what course to pursue.

It is prophesied that this summer's wheat will sell high, the crop in some sections being below normal, while the European demand will continue unabated.

PASSENGER AND FREIGHT COLLIDE

Reason for Delay in Morning Mail is Explained through News of Narrowly Escaped Disaster. On Wrong Track.

A serious wreck was averted by a narrow margin on the Western Maryland Railway near Rocky Ridge on Thursday, when a passenger train ran into a freight train. Fortunately no one was injured and about all the damage was the knocking off of the pilot on the passenger engine.

It is said the accident was due to the failure of some of the trainmen to give proper instructions. The freight which was known as No. 36 was east bound, while passenger train No. 1 was going west from Baltimore carrying the early mail and the Baltimore papers. The freight was on the main track and the passenger train was supposed to take the siding at Monocacy.

Instead, the passenger train, carrying the early morning travelers, kept to the main track. Due to prompt action, a serious wreck was avoided, the pilot on the passenger train being all that was damaged. The freight was standing at the time. The passengers were somewhat shaken up, but none was injured.

Traffic on the road was delayed for about 50 minutes, the papers missed and mail was late in arriving at Gettysburg.

FARMER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Uses Rope to End his Existence. Was Well Known in the Lower End of Adams County. Found by his Employer.

Despondent from some unknown cause, Levi Wanner, aged 52 years, and well known in the lower end of the county, committed suicide by hanging himself in the wagon shed of W. H. Shaull, for whom he was working, near Brogueville. Mr. Wanner, it is said, at times showed signs of an unbalanced mental condition. This was noticed only about four weeks ago, however.

For the past four years Mr. Wanner had been living on the small farm of Reuben Chalfant, and during the summer months would work for Mr. Shaull. He arrived at the farm about noon Thursday to help Mr. Shaull work his corn. About 2 o'clock he left the field and proceeded to the wagon-shed, adjoining the barn. Mr. Shaull soon noticed his prolonged absence and immediately made a search for him.

Upon arriving at the wagon shed he noticed that the door was standing open and upon further investigation he found Wanner dead, hanging from a large rope used in holding wagon beds to the floor. Mr. Shaull cut the body down and called for 'Squire Brenneman, of Cross Roads, but he was not at home, after which 'Squire Sentz, of Felton, was summoned.

Mr. Wanner, it is said, had no financial nor domestic worries and his family and friends are at a loss to account for his action in taking his own life. He survived by his wife and five children.

REGULAR MEETING

W. C. T. U. Appoints Superintendents at Thursday Session.

The regular meeting of the Gettysburg Union was held at the home of Mrs. Fiscel, Baltimore street, Thursday evening. Mrs. Keith, Mrs. Baker, and Mrs. Sanders were appointed a committee to provide a place and prepare for a lecture by Mrs. Deborah Knox Livingston, on June 16. She comes highly recommended as a fine speaker on every phase of W. C. T. U. work, temperance, purity, franchise, and other reforms.

An invitation from the Anti-Saloon League to send delegates to their convention to be held in Atlantic City, July 6th, was responded to, the delegates to be named later.

The following superintendents of departments, named by the executive committee were confirmed by the Union, Sunday School temperance work, Dr. Parsons; flower mission, Mrs. Glen; legislature, Mrs. Sanders; mother's meetings, Mrs. Reaser; prison and evangelistic work, and work among the colored, Mrs. Houck; medal contests, Mrs. Creager; parliamentary usage, Mrs. Baker; anti-narcotics, Mrs. Riggs; purity, Mrs. Thomas Winebrenner; press, Mrs. Keith.

The awards for the Houck essays had been decided upon by the judges appointed by the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Riggs, Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Gitt, and the result published by the principal of the school who alone knew who were the competitors. The judges declared it was hard work to decide as all were so commendable. There were seventy contestants.

Several requests were considered from members for mothers' meetings in private parlors. Porch meetings and afternoon meetings were proposed but not acted upon and curfew found no time left for consideration.

MAJESTIC SUNK BY TURK TORPEDO

British Battleship Destroyed by a Submarine.

ANOTHER SHIP BLOWN UP

The Princess Irene Destroyed by Accidental Explosion in Harbor in England—328 Men Die.

London, May 28.—The torpedoing and sinking of the British battleship Majestic is announced by the admiralty in the following statement: "An enemy submarine torpedoed and sank H. M. S. Majestic, Captain H. F. G. Talbot, while it was supporting the army on the Gallipoli peninsula. Nearly all the officers and the men were saved."

The battleship Majestic was a vessel of 14,900 tons and of 10,000 horse power. Her officers and crew on a peace footing aggregated 757. The Majestic, which was built in 1895, carried four 12-inch, twelve 6-inch and sixteen 3-inch guns and twelve three-pounder guns. In addition the vessel was armed with five 18-inch torpedo tubes.

The sinking of the Majestic makes the fifth British battleship lost in the Dardanelles campaign, and the second by a hostile submarine, the Triumph having been sent to the bottom in the Gulf of Saros last Wednesday. The French also have lost one battleship in the Turkish campaign—the Bouvet.

All the crew of 250 men of the British steamer Princess Irene, except one man, and in addition seventy-eight dockers, who were at work on board the steamer, lost their lives when the vessel was blown up by an explosion on board in Sheerness harbor. The steamer was in the government service, Sheerness being a naval arsenal of Great Britain on the Thames. The admiralty, in announcing the disaster, says:

"The Princess Irene was accidentally blown up in Sheerness harbor. So far as is yet known only one survivor was picked up. Three men belonging to the ship were not on board at the time of the disaster. "Several men belonging to vessels lying close to the Princess Irene were wounded by falling splinters."

SEE U. S. DRAWN INTO WAR

President of Canadian Railway Cannot See How It Can Be Avoided.

New York, May 28.—Before sailing for Liverpool on the White Star liner Adriatic, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific railroad, intimated that the United States, in his opinion, would be drawn into the great war.

"The United States will have to do something radical in the face of present conditions," said Sir Thomas. "I do not see how it can be avoided. Whether diplomatically involved or otherwise, I believe she will uphold her honor to the full."

Asked if he was nervous about the trip to the war zone, Sir Thomas replied: "Oh, no. I take things as they come. As a matter of fact, I have often been more nervous when in the cab of a Canadian Pacific locomotive going over a new piece of road."

The Adriatic carried 296 passengers and 18,000 tons of general cargo and munitions.

GOVERNOR MUCH IN DEMAND

Cannot Accept Invitations Because 700 Bills Await Action.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 28.—Governor Brumbaugh is swamped with invitations to make speeches.

He has been receiving them at the rate of twenty-five a day for the last three weeks, and owing to the requirements of time for consideration of the 700 bills left with him by the legislature and the administration of the state government will be unable to accept any for some time to come.

The invitations include meetings of all kinds, conventions, dedications, commencements and other occasions.

RUMANIA UNREADY FOR WAR

So Says Bulgarian Minister to U. S. No Early Move Likely.

Washington, May 28.—Stephan Panarettoff, Bulgarian minister to the United States, declared his belief that Rumania had no immediate intention of entering the European war, and that Greece was even more unready than Rumania.

The minister added that he had received no word from his government to indicate any early action in the Balkans.

Submarine Sinks Steamer.

Cardiff, Wales, May 28.—The steamship Morwenna, of Montreal, was torpedoed and shelled by a German submarine 160 miles west by south of St. Ann's Head. One member of the crew was killed and three wounded. The others were landed at Cardiff. The Morwenna was bound from Cardiff for Sydney, Cape Breton, in ballast. The Belgian trawler Jaqueline picked up the crew.

All members of P. O. S. of A. are requested to report in their white parade uniforms on May 31, at 1 p. m. at camp room. By order of Committee.—advertisement

English Poet Doubts That Allies Will Beat Germans.

RYNDAM GAINS PORT; ALL ON BOARD SAFE

Liner, Damaged in Collision, Returns to New York.

Washington, May 28.—The American liner Ryndam, damaged by a sea explosion off the Irish coast, reached the Mersey, according to a cablegram from the American consul general at Liverpool, who met the vessel with a tug off the bar.

It is probable that the cause of the explosion, whether by torpedo or a floating mine, will not be known until an examination of the vessel is made.

A dispatch from Consul General Skinner at London said the Ryndam's American flag had been hauled down five minutes before she was struck, although her name was painted on her sides in letters six feet high.

The American naval attaché at London has been sent to Liverpool to examine the Ryndam's hull.

Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, presented a memorandum to the state department, saying German mines were of a type which becomes harmless if they drift from their anchorages.

"With reference to the report that I read in the papers," the memorandum said, "I have to say that according to official information from the German admiralty, German mines laid in the sea become innocuous when detached."

E. H. Duff, counsel for the company owning the Ryndam, communicated with the New York offices and later, at the state department, said the circumstances of the affair, particularly the damage to the bow of the Ryndam, indicated to him that the vessel struck a mine.

MEAT FOR DOG; WIFE NONE

Hubby Took Chop and Gave Animal One When She Made Two.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 28.—Mrs. Besie M. Golden, of this city, has been granted a divorce from Charles Golden because he took meat off her plate at the dinner table and gave it to his pet dog, saying to her that he couldn't afford to have his dog go without meat once a day.

When she asked him how he supposed she could get along without it, he told her she could shift for herself and the dog couldn't.

Just before he left her, she testified, she went to the butcher shop one night and bought two pork chops. When she placed them on the table, cooked and ready to eat, he took one for himself and gave the other to the dog.

Too Old For Work, Sends $2 For Sub. Harrisburg, Pa., May 27.—Governor Brumbaugh received $2 from B. K. Spangler, former member of the legislature, with a request that it be used to pay for one man to work on roads on "Good Roads Day." He wrote that he was too old to work, but wanted to give his mite.

ITALIAN BEAT BACK AUSTRIANS

Cross Isonzo River Despite Sharp Resistance.

ADVANCE AGAINST GERMANS

Big Battle Is Imminent, If It Has Not Already Taken Place—Victor Emmanuel at the Front.

London, May 28.—After a sharp fight with the Austrians a strong Italian advance guard crossed the Isonzo river, where the Austrians had made a determined stand in defense of Trieste, and arrived before the town of Monfalcone, which is fifteen miles from Trieste.

The first of the Austrian wounded are now arriving at Trieste. The engagement marks the real opening of the big battle for the possession of Trieste.

The first clash between German and Italian troops in the Tyrol is imminent, if it has not already occurred, according to reports from Vienna. A German army corps (40,000 men) is concentrated on the Trentino front and is strongly entrenched. It is declared that the main Italian army is approaching the Germans, being only two miles from their trenches at last reports.

A large German force had been previously reported on its way from Innsbruck, capital of Tyrol, down the valley of the Adige to Trent and Rovereto, threatening an advance on the Italian base at Verona.

This Italian position is an exposed one, and the railway from Verona runs direct to Brescia, where there is an important small arms factory.

Italian attacks at several points along the forty miles of the Carinthian frontier are reported. A battle between Italians and Austrians is raging around Ploken and also west of the Praedil pass in Austria.

A strong force is marching upon Gorz, the capital of the Austrian crownland of Gorz and Gradisca.

The arrival of King Victor Emmanuel from Verona coincided with a general advance of the Italian forces gathered there up the valley of the Adige across the Trentino frontier into Southern Tyrol.

This army occupied Monte Pasubio, 7300 feet high, and the chain of hills ending in Monte Baldo, 4000 feet high, crowned by an Austrian fort which was constructed since the opening of the great war, as well as the principal defenses of the Agho and Leorda rivers. The objective of this movement is evidently Rovereto.

At the same time Italian forces entered Tyrol by the Tonale pass, occupying Forcellina and Montozza, while a third division proceeded up the Val Giudicaria, taking Ponte di Caffaro in its thrust toward Riva, at the head of Lake Garda, which is connected by railroad with Rovereto.

All the passes leading through the Caric Alps have been occupied.

Italy's blockade of the Austro-Hungarian seacoast has been extended to include the Albanian coast line. The Italian government suspects Austria of utilizing Albanian ports for secret commissariat departments.

INITIATION IS STRENUOUS

Man Lashed High on Roof During a Fierce Storm.

Wilmington, Del., May 28.—Charles Yoder, of 701 Tattall street, is in a precarious condition at his home after being lashed to a wireless aerial upon the roof of the Dupont building in a severe storm.

Yoder was led to the roof blindfolded by members of the Sigma Delta Phi fraternity and as spreadeagled upon the towering aerial as part of his initiation.

The initiation party then retired to the rose room of the Hotel Dupont and dined, unaware that the city was being swept by a storm. When rescued Yoder was only partly conscious.

Greek King Improves.

Athens, May 28.—An official bulletin states that King Constantine of Greece passed a better night and that he showed a slight improvement. WILSON WON'T SPEAK IN PHILADELPHIA

"Too Proud to Fight" Sentence Keeps Him Away.

Washington, May 28.—President Wilson declared to the Fourth of July committee of Philadelphia council that he could not see his way clear to make an address on July 4 at Independence Hall.

The president, who received the Philadelphia committee in the blue room at the White House instead, as is his practice as respects delegations, in the executive office, observed in substance:

"While the whole world is on fire we should be calm and collected."

President Wilson cited the promise given to one sentence of his recent Philadelphia speech to newly naturalized citizens as an example of what might happen should he consent to make a Fourth of July address this year. The sentence which was featured in the newspapers consisted of eleven words and was as follows:

"There is such a thing as being too proud to fight."

The president, after referring to the emphasis put upon the above excerpt in newspaper headlines and "leads," observed that no particular significance resided in the eleven words seized upon out of his convention hall address to the newly naturalized citizens.

Mr. Wilson did not couch his comment as to the construction put upon a particular part of his recent Philadelphia speech in a spirit of criticism, but rather made it serve as a hinge upon which to neatly and courteously close the door upon the invitation to deliver a message of either national-wide or world-wide import.

KING TOMMY OF YPRES.

One British Private Played Monarch in City for a Week.

Here is a story which is well vouched for. When Ypres was first bombarded, early in November, the British withdrew their troops from the town, but did not remove the civil population. There was one British private who did not leave with the rest, for he was asleep in a cellar.

Next morning he awoke to find Ypres without any authority, and, mistaking that, he set about governing it himself. He kept the eleven citizens under iron discipline, gave orders that looters should be shot at sight and, though himself inclined to the bottle, prevented drunkenness in others. They called him "Le Roi" Ypres.

But his kingship lasted only a week. A callous court martial tried him, found his efforts in the cause of order had been good and forgave him his other delinquencies.

Woman's Body Taken to Same Police Station Twenty Years Later.

Twenty years after she had identified the body of her mother in a police station in New York city the body of Mrs. Mary T. Cassidy was identified by her two daughters, Anna and Mary, in the same station house after she had fallen dead in a Sixth avenue elevated train.

The two cases were strikingly similar. Mrs. Cassidy, who was a widow, sixty-two years old, was seized with heart disease on the train. Twenty years ago Mrs. Cassidy's mother, who was Mrs. Mary Cominsky, was stricken in the same manner on the street.

NEBRASKA SAFE, CABLES SKINNER

U. S. Ship Damaged by Explosion Reaches the Mersey.

New York, May 28.—The Holland American liner Ryndam is safe in port after a collision and a narrow escape from destruction off the Nantucket Shoals lightship.

The Joseph J. Cuneo, which rammed the Ryndam, steamed slowly into port, a cripple, an hour after the Ryndam had docked.

There was no mistaking that the little ship had been in a collision. Her bow was smashed, her plates crumpled, bent to port and forced back until both anchors were jammed in the hawser pipes, and she was down by the head where the sea had rushed in the forepeak. Her engines and machinery were undamaged.

Four transfers, two at sea and two in New York harbor, left sixty-two of the seventy-four passengers who had sailed from New York on the Ryndam on Tuesday afternoon, back again on board the Dutch liner. These passengers and 150 members of the Ryndam's crew were taken aboard by the Cuneo half an hour after the collision of the two vessels.

Later the Cuneo transferred the rescued passengers and seamen to the United States battleship South Carolina, which distanced three other battleships of the Atlantic fleet in a race started by the call for help from the wireless aboard the Ryndam. The South Carolina brought the shipwrecked company to New York.

A FORD EVERY 16 SECONDS DURING APRIL

The production of 46,510 Ford cars in the 26 eight-hour working days of April, means a new car about every 16 seconds. Of course, this is a new record even for the Ford Motor Company. But the remarkable feature of this splendid manufacturing achievement is the fact that each car that came out of the assembly lines of the factory and assembling plants at intervals of 16 seconds and rolled away under its own power was made in the minutest detail, with all the infinite care and perfect design and the laboriously tested materials which the Ford progressive efficiency alone has made possible. While it requires about two months to build a Ford car the special equipment and methods assembled a complete Ford car as above stated, one every 16 seconds.—Advertisement.

OPEN SEASON WITH VICTORY

Hanover Taken into Camp by the Patriots who Showed Form that Delighted the Several Hundred Gettysburg Fans Present.

Gettysburg 5, Hanover 0.

What an auspicious beginning! Invading the territory of the old foe, the new Patriots charged the ramparts, battered down the gunners, and after routing the defenders brought home the booty. And there was not one casualty. That home plate remained as untouched by the Hanover Hornets as though the game had never been played.

Twelve hundred people gathered for the fray and it was a surprised crowd. Hanover confident of winning, Gettysburg exceedingly dubious, and rooters all looking for loose work on both sides—this was the state of the assemblage, but all predictions went amiss. The game was early in complete control of the Patriots and mid-season ball was a rule of the day.

To begin with, the several hundred rooters, who accompanied Plank's charges are convinced that, just as it now stands, the town is represented by "some team". Bill Stair, on the mound, comes in for first mention, seeming to delight in getting men on bases, worrying his supporters, and then turning their sorrow to joy by blanking the would-be Hanover heroes. In only one inning did men fail to get on base, he issued five passes, and struck two men, but when the delivering of real goods was necessary, he was there. Four hits composed the total gathering.

Kelly, with a total of four outs and three hits, was the star of the outfield, though Jones' difficult catch in the fourth with men on second and third saved two runs, and Rudolph, with his two timely hits, and long running catch of a foul, was due for his share of the praise. Stover at short made one difficult stop after another and caught men at second and first by his fast throwing. He was decidedly due for a place among the stars of the day.

Reeder had the longest hit of the game, a three bagger, in the ninth, and he kept the men on their toes. Ira Plank played errorless ball and was the ideal manager throughout. That big man Jarosiek, back of the bat, was a tower of strength.

But how about Mr. Oyler, alias "Muff"? We have saved him until the last and will give him a paragraph all to himself. It was he who delivered the two bagger which drove in Gettysburg's first two runs, it was he who scored one of the last two, it was he who forgot a bruised and painful finger sufficiently to hurry that ball along over to Ira for outs when outs were needed, and it was he who proved that Gettysburg has some real stuff right here at home. All honor to Murphy!

So much for the individual men. As to the game itself and the scoring thereof the following is of interest. In the second, Gettysburg had three earned runs, Plank drew four balls, was forced out at second by Stover, Kelly came across with his first hit and both scored on Oyler's two bagger. Muff coming in on Stair's clean hit. In the fourth Oyler was safe at first when Hostetter dropped Starr's throw, Stair was hit by a pitched ball, both advanced a base on Reeder's sacrifice, and tallied on Rudolph's hit.

CHAPTER V—Sabron and Pitcheune meet the Marquis and Miss Redmond and after the story of Pitcheune is told Sabron is forgiven and invited to dinner again.

CHAPTER VI—Sabron is ordered to Algiers, but is not allowed to take servants or dogs. He is invited to a musicale at the Chateau.

CHAPTER VII—At the musicale Miss Redmond, hearing that Sabron cannot take Pitcheune with him, offers to take care of the dog during his master's absence.

CHAPTER VIII—Pitcheune, homesick for his master, runs away from Miss Redmond. The Marquis plans to marry Julia to the Duc de Tremont.

CHAPTER XXV.

As Handsome Does.

When Sabron next opened his eyes he fancied that he was at home in his old room in Rouen, in the house where he was born, in the little room in which, as a child, dressed in his dimity night gown, he had sat up in his bed by candle light to learn his letters from the cookery book.

The room was snowy white. Outside the window he heard a bird sing, and near by, he heard a dog's smothered bark. Then he knew that he was not at home or a child, for with the languor and weakness came his memory. A quiet nurse in a hospital dress was sitting by his bed, and Pitcheune rose from the foot of the bed and looked at him adoringly.

He was in a hospital in Algiers. "Pitcheune," he murmured, not knowing the name of his other companion, "where are we, old fellow?"

The nurse replied in an agreeable Anglo-Saxon French:

"You are in a French hospital in Algiers, sir, and doing well."

Tremont came up to him.

"Remember you," Sabron said. "You have been near me a dozen times lately."

"You must not talk, mon vieux."

"But I feel as though I must talk a great deal. Didn't you come for me into the desert?"

Tremont, healthy, vigorous, tanned, gay and cheerful, seemed good looking to poor Sabron, who gazed up at him with touching gratitude.

"I think I remember everything. I think I shall never forget it," he said, and lifted his hand feebly. Robert de Tremont took it. "Haven't we traveled far together, Tremont?"

"Yes," nodded the other, affected, "but you must sleep now. We will talk about it over our cigars and liquors soon."

Sabron smiled faintly. His clear mind was regaining its balance, and thoughts began to sweep over it cruelly fast. He looked at his rescuer, and to him the other's radiance meant simply that he was engaged to Miss Redmond. Of course that was natural. Sabron tried to accept it and to be glad for the happiness of the man who had rescued him. But as he thought this, he wondered why he had been rescued and shut his eyes so that Tremont might not see his weakness. He said hesitatingly:

"I am haunted by a melody, a tune. Could you help me? It won't come."

"It's not the 'Marsellaise'?" asked the other, sitting down by his side and pulling Pitcheune's ears.

"Oh, no!"

"There will be singing in the ward shortly. A Red Cross nurse comes to sing to the patients. She may help you to remember."

Sabron renounced in despair. Haunting, tantalizing in his brain and elusive, the notes began and stopped, began and stopped. He wanted to ask his friend a thousand questions. How he had come to him, why he had come to him, how he knew. . . . He gave it all up and dozed, and while he slept the sweet sleep of those who are to recover, he heard the sound of a woman's voice in the distance, singing, one after another, familiar melodies, and finally he heard the "Kyrie Eleison," and to its music Sabron again fell asleep.

The next day he received a visitor. It was not an easy matter to introduce visitors to his bedside, for Pitcheune objected. Pitcheune received the Marquis d'Esclagnac with great displeasure.

"Is he a thoroughbred?" asked the Marquis d'Esclagnac.

"He has behaved like one," replied the officer.

There was a silence. The Marquis d'Esclagnac was wondering what her niece saw in the pale man so near still to the borders of the other world.

"You will be leaving the army, of course," she murmured, looking at him interestedly.

"Madame!" said the Capitaine de Sabron, with his blood—all that was in him—rising to his cheeks.

"I mean that France has done nothing for you. France did not rescue you and you may feel like seeking a more—another career."

Sabron could not reply. Her ribbons and flowers and jewels shook in his eyes like a kaleidoscope. His flush had made him more natural. In his invalid state, with his hair brushed back from his fine brow, there was something spiritual and beautiful about him. The Marquis d'Esclagnac looked on a man who had been far and who had determined of his own accord to come back. She said none gently, putting her hand affectionately over his.

"Get strong, monsieur—get well. Eat all the good things we are making for you. I dare say that the army cannot spare you. It needs brave hearts."

Sabron was so agitated after her departure that the nurse said he must receive no more visits for several days, and he meditated and longed and thought and wondered, and nearly cursed the life that had brought him back to a world which must be lonely for him henceforth.

When he sat up in bed he was a shadow. He had a book to read and read a few lines of it, but he put it down as the letters blurred. He was sitting so, dreaming and wondering how true or how false it was that he had seen Julia Redmond come several times to his bedside during the early days of his illness here in the hospital. Then across his troubled mind suddenly came the words that he had heard her sing, and he tried to recall them. The Red Cross nurse who so charitably sang in the hospital came to the wards and began her mission. One after another she sang familiar songs.

"How the poor devils must love it!" Sabron thought, and he blessed her for charity.

How familiar was her voice! But that was only because he was so ill. But he began to wonder and to doubt.

He was in a hospital in Algiers. "Pitcheune," he murmured, not knowing the name of his other companion, "where are we, old fellow?"

The nurse replied in an agreeable Anglo-Saxon French:

"You are in a French hospital in Algiers, sir, and doing well."

Tremont came up to him.

"Remember you," Sabron said. "You have been near me a dozen times lately."

"You must not talk, mon vieux."

"But I feel as though I must talk a great deal. Didn't you come for me into the desert?"

Tremont, healthy, vigorous, tanned, gay and cheerful, seemed good looking to poor Sabron, who gazed up at him with touching gratitude.

"I think I remember everything. I think I shall never forget it," he said, and lifted his hand feebly. Robert de Tremont took it. "Haven't we traveled far together, Tremont?"

"Yes," nodded the other, affected, "but you must sleep now. We will talk about it over our cigars and liquors soon."

Sabron smiled faintly. His clear mind was regaining its balance, and thoughts began to sweep over it cruelly fast. He looked at his rescuer, and to him the other's radiance meant simply that he was engaged to Miss Redmond. Of course that was natural. Sabron tried to accept it and to be glad for the happiness of the man who had rescued him. But as he thought this, he wondered why he had been rescued and shut his eyes so that Tremont might not see his weakness. He said hesitatingly:

"I am haunted by a melody, a tune. Could you help me? It won't come."

"It's not the 'Marsellaise'?" asked the other, sitting down by his side and pulling Pitcheune's ears.

"Oh, no!"

When He Sat Up in Bed He Was a Shadow.

and across the distance came the notes of the tune, the melody of the song that had haunted him for many months:

God keep you safe, my love,
All through the night;
Rest close in his encircling arms
Until the light.
My heart is with you as I kneel to pray,
Good night! God keep you in his care Always.

Think shadows creep like silent ghosts
About my head;
I lose myself in tender dreams
While overhead
The moon comes stealing through the window-bars,
A silver sickle gleaming 'mid the stars.

For I, though I am far away,
Feel safe and strong.
To trust you thus, dear love—and yet,
The night is long.
I say with sobbing breath the old fond prayer,
Good night! Sweet dreams! God keep you everywhere!"

When she had finished singing there were tears on the soldier's cheeks and he was not ashamed. Pitcheune, who remembered the tune as well, crept up to him and laid his head on his master's hand. Sabron had just time to wipe away the tears when the Duc de Tremont came in.

"Old fellow, do you feel up to seeing Miss Redmond for a few moments?"

TWOSCORE AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Fifty years ago the great struggle for our national existence, to which so many heroes gave their lives and those who died later their best days, was ended in victory.

We do not rejoice because of the victory of the north over the south, but because of the victory which marked the last step in the governmental progress of the human race and demonstrated that men can govern themselves.

We meet on Memorial day at the graves of those who died in the days of strife and of those who survived that struggle and yet have reached their last resting place, the bivouac of the dead.

Upon them the government leaned as upon pillars of safety. In the days when they might have been preparing for the future struggles of life they were serving their country; they were fighting her battles; they were doing their duty as patriots in striving for the advance of the human race.

Amid the roar of artillery, the crashing of shells, the malicious whistlings of the little mine, the gleaming bayonets and flashing sabers they bore the shock of battle in defense of their country. Aye, more than that, their heroism and the heroism of their comrades through four years of bloody strife lifted their country high among the nations of the earth, where she stands today, the sovereign of them all.

Twoscore and ten years ago the tramp of armed hosts homeward bound was heard throughout the length and breadth of our land. Guns were stacked, ranks were broken and then began another march, the march of citizens who had left behind them the tented field, to their homes and the boundless, unpeopled west, where they and their descendants yet live and add to the strength and patriotism of our great commonwealth.

The Old Vets.

They march down the dusty street.
A little squad, whose lagging feet
Heed not the drums' loud rhythm.
And, mark, a cane supplants the gun!
'Twas not like this in sixty-one.
When youth and health were with 'em.

The squad was then a regiment.
The forms were straight that now are bent.
While Gettysburg, Antietam,
Were quite unknown and minie ball
And gaunt disease and prison pall
Had not essayed to beat 'em.

The boys who wore the Union blue
Are now "old vets," and comrades true
Beneath the sod are lying.
But over the living and the dead,
O'er crumbled skull and silvered head,
The stars and stripes are flying.
—Edwin L. Sabin in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Grant's "Big Contract."

While the Union army was at Culpeper Court House, getting ready to deliver the terrific blows which were destined to end the Southern Confederacy, General Grant wrote the following letter to a cousin in St. Louis:

"Headquarters Armies of the United States, Culpeper C. H., Va., April 24, 1864.
"Dear Cousin—Julia has gone to New York city and will probably remain a couple of weeks before going to St. Louis. In the meantime I shall not hear from the children unless they write to me direct. I wish you would urge them all to join in letters to me every week. I feel anxious to hear from them, always, and then it improves them quite as much to write letters as to study their lessons. How do Buck and Nellie progress in their German?"

"Jess has cut his eyeteeth mingling with Washington society. He has become independent and a great favorite with both ladies and gentlemen at Wilbur's school. He is still very anxious to get back to St. Louis to go to school. 'Kiss all the children for me, and the young ladies, too, if you like. I should like to see you all very much, but I have a big contract on hand to complete before I can expect to indulge in such pleasure."
U. S. GRANT."

But Now Eats Corned Beef, Cabbage, Pork, Onions and Mince Pie for Dinner and Never Feels a Pain.

Do you belong to the "No thank you" society of the dinner table where the mere sight of certain foods makes you feel that pain you now would be yours if you ever ate them?

What a weak, easily upset stomach really needs is not a digestive aid but a stomach strengthener. Any reliable physician will tell you it's dangerous to continually dose the stomach with peptic digesters and the like. His own prescription will act on the stomach instead. No physician ever wrote a better stomach prescription than that embodied in the famous MILD-N-A Stomach Tablets that People's Drug Store and most every other druggist in this vicinity sells with the positive guarantee that they must put a complete and lasting end to stomach misery or money back. Mild-N-A strengthens the walls and muscular fibres of the stomach and induces prompt normal working of your own stomach machinery. It gives relief in ten minutes to all the common and uncomfortable symptoms of sour rising, gas, belching, burning, bloating, shooting pains, etc., and in a few weeks will put the stomach in such a clear and perfectly healthy condition that it can digest a typical New England boiled dinner without the slightest effort or distress.

What Paul Wilson Did For His Family

PAUL WILSON was a plain man—just like you and me. He had a wife and a couple of kiddies, and he made four payments of $50 a year for AETNA Accident Insurance. Then Paul Wilson was killed in a train wreck.

His policy called for $10,000, but it had increased $1,000 each time he renewed the insurance without increase in the amount he paid. And because he was killed while traveling the benefit was doubled.

So Mrs. Wilson and the kiddies received $20,000. Be wise—

Medical Advertising LADIES! Darken Your Gray Hair

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and No body will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

People's Drug Store can supply you.

How Does "Love In a Hurry" Strike You?

It is the new Serial to appear next week in the TIMES.
The title sounds as though there might be a sequel.
We hope so—if it's as good a story as this one
But when GELETT BURGESS
writes it is fairly certain to be good.
Most of you know about him—are familiar with his work.
For those who do not know his writing this is an opportunity not to be neglected.
His books are like some automobiles, they sell on their reputation.
This one has more than reputation—it is what is facetiously known as a "Humdinger". Action in every minute, and it doesn't take you back three or four hundred years to events that may be historically important but feebly interesting to-day.
More people should read this Serial than any the TIMES has ever published.
We will announce later the day it is to start and in the mean-while give you an inkling of its plot.

ZEPPELINS SHELL ENGLISH TOWN

Raid Southend, Near London, Killing Two Women.

ATTACK GERMAN POWDER PLANT

Eighteen French Airmen Drop Bombs on Factory on the Rhine—British Aviators Shell Ghent.

London, May 28.—Another Zeppelin
airship raid was made upon Southend.
It was first reported that three persons were killed by bombs which were dropped, but a revised count shows, according to Southend's account that only one person was killed, Mrs. May Fabin, who was there on a visit. A number of other persons, however,
were injured.

The secretary of the admiralty, however, issued a statement which, contrary to the dispatches from South-end, says two women were killed. It reads:

"A Zeppelin visited the east coast and bombs were dropped on South-end. The casualties reported are two women killed and one child badly injured. Very little material damage was done. Aeroplanes and seaplanes proceeded in pursuit of the enemy,
but the Zeppelin succeeded in escaping in an easterly direction."

The entire town was illuminated by the bursting of shells dropped by the aircraft. The material damage caused appears to have been less than on the occasion of the last raid.

The noise of the propellers of the airships was first heard. Then came the shock of the explosions as the bombs rained down from above. Some of the missiles were incendiary and threw out bright flares of light.

Crowds assembled in the streets of Southend to view the raiders. The killing of Mrs. Fabin occurred while the woman was leaving a street car.
It is revealed that on the previous raid the only victim was a woman.

Airmen Attack German Powder Works
Paris, May 28.—A French aerial squadron, composed of eighteen aéroplanes, each one carrying fifty kilos (110 pounds) of projectiles, bombarded
a chemical factory at Ludwigshafen, on the Rhine, opposite Mannheim. Fire broke out in several of the factory buildings as a result of the bombardment.

This factory is one of the most important manufacturers of explosives in all Germany. The French aviators were in the air for six hours and covered more than 400 kilometers (240 miles).

British Airmen Shell Ghent.
London, May 28.—A Central News dispatch from Rotterdam states that English aviators have bombarded
Ghent, killing a number of troops, breaching the military station, blowing up ammunition stores and engine shops and disorganizing all traffic in the city.

KILLING FROSTS COVER EAST

Ice Forms at Some Places in Cold Wave That Breaks Records.

Washington, May 28.—Killing frosts throughout the lake region and the middle Atlantic states broke all May records for many years and promise unseasonably cold weather for the next twenty-four hours.

In the parlance of the weather bureau experts "a strong high area" over the lake region which rose to block the path of a storm from western Canada was responsible for the early summer phenomenon.

While frost is still probable in the lower lake region, New England and the middle Atlantic states, warmer weather is promised in the path of fair weather from the Ohio valley and the lower lake region.

All Crops Killed.
Johnston, Pa., May 28.—Hundreds of thousands of dollars of loss was inflicted on farmers and gardeners of Somerset and Cambria counties by a black frost, which killed potato, tomato and corn down to the ground, and withered other garden produce as if a fire had passed over it. Ice formed in the suburbs of Johnston, as well as in the country districts. Thousands of acres will have to be entirely replanted.

France Seeking Shells.
Allentown, Pa., May 28.—The French government, it was learned, is anxious to place an order with a local concern for the manufacture of 1000 shells a day. Charles Spangler, proprietor and general manager of the Spangler foundry, received the order, but said he would be forced to decline it, as his plant is overcrowded with other work.

Fix Hours For Drinking.
London, May 28.—"No soldier or sailor, whether officer or private, may be served a drink in the Seventh district except between noon and half-past eight o'clock in the evening."
This order, addressed to the saloon-keepers, was issued by the brigadier general commanding the district.

Oil Treatment for Stomach Troubles

A simple prescription made up of a combination of pure vegetable oils is producing wonderful results for sufferers from stomach, liver and intestinal troubles. The remedy, which is said to have originated in France, where it has been used for years by the peasantry, was introduced into this country by George H. Mayr, a leading Chicago druggist, who cured himself of severe stomach, liver and intestinal troubles by its use. Those who have used it say the first dose is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable merit, and that within twenty-four hours the sufferer feels like a new person. This medicine, which has become known as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

The Landing of Mr. Martindale

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

"Is Miss Worthington at home?"
"No, sir; Miss Worthington is in the country."

"Indeed, where did she go for her summer vacation this year?"
"I'll let you know in a moment, sir. Please come in."

The gentleman went into the drawing room and the maid disappeared upstairs. Entering a telephone booth, she shut the door carefully and called up her mistress at the Colonial hotel, Arlington Springs. When the lady came to the telephone the maid said:
"Mr. Martindale has called. He has asked me where you have gone this summer. I suppose I may give him your address."

"Wait a moment." Then, after a pause, "Yes, you may give him my address."

The maid went downstairs with a card in her hand bearing the information required and handed it to Mr. Martindale. He glanced at it, then left the house. He had been paying attention to Miss Worthington for a long while; at least, they had been very companionable. The gentleman was considered quite a catch, and the lady was anxious to land him. During the spring he had considered the expediency of giving up his bachelorhood by marrying Miss Worthington and had decided that he could not possibly bear to let himself up. He had therefore sheered off, and Miss Worthington had gone to the country without his asking where she would go. But midsummer had come round. The city was deserted, and, though he had many friends at their country places who would have been glad to entertain him, he was not especially drawn to any of them. Thinking he would enjoy the companionship of his chum, he had called at her house for her address.

The next day Miss Worthington received a note from her chum which read:

"It's deuced slow here in town. I'm thinking of taking an outing. If you won't be bored by my company I'll join you for a few days."

On receipt of this note Miss Worthington deliberated. Had she better reply that she was not feeling very well and kept her room most of the time? The country is a good place for a girl to land a lover, but Miss Worthington had not succeeded during the previous summer, though they had been under the same roof for several weeks. If she had a foil she would feel more confident. But there was not a man at the hotel whom she could use to make Mr. Martindale jealous.

"I have it!" she exclaimed. And, going to the writing room, she wrote Mr. Martindale that the season in the country was very dull and he would not find Arlington Springs much of an improvement on the city. At the same time, if he desired to escape from the latter, she would do what she could to relieve the ennui.

Now, there was but one train a day to Arlington Springs, arriving at 4 o'clock in the afternoon! Every afternoon at a quarter to 4 Miss Worthington started to walk to the village wherein was located the station, calculating to arrive at the latter as the train came in. The postoffice was directly opposite the station, and the lady carried a letter in her hand, stamped and otherwise ready for mailing. It was addressed to an old friend of hers who had at one time caused Mr. Martindale some concern. Within the envelope was a blank sheet of paper.

Miss Worthington had carried her letter to the postoffice on three different afternoons, only to take it back with her. On the fourth day, arriving simultaneously with the train, she saw Mr. Martindale alight. She attracted his attention, and he joined her.

"I had given you up," she said.

"Your letter was not encouraging, but it's dreadfully hot in the city. I could stand it no longer."

"If you like we'll walk back to the hotel together."

"Surely. I have only this suit case. I can't stay very long. I'll put it in the Colonial coach."

Having attended to this matter, he started across the street for the postoffice with Miss Worthington. She dropped her letter, and he picked it up. The address he could not help seeing. He started, and, holding the letter in his hand, he looked anxiously at Miss Worthington. She seemed somewhat embarrassed.

"I fear," he said, "that my coming is inopportune."

"Why so?"

"Possibly you are engrossed with--"

"Give me the letter."

A revolution had suddenly broken out in Mr. Martindale's breast. He had either lost or was about to lose Miss Worthington. What we can get we don't prize; what we can't get we covet.

"Perhaps," he said, "I had better return to the city."

"As you please. There was no train till the next morning."

"May I ask if this letter contains anything--anything decisive?"

"I decline to answer the question."

He stood undecided for a few moments, then put the letter in his pocket. Miss Worthington was greatly relieved. She had been fearful that he would mail it.

They walked to the hotel together, and when they dined a couple of hours later they were engaged.

Hard Job.

An Atlanta wife sues for a divorce because her husband is a gambler, but reading the entire story we find in the concluding paragraph that he generally loses all his money. It is hard for anybody to love a loser.--Houston Post.

NEW DISCOVERY

Many Cures Reported Daily in Towns Where It Is Known.

The wonderful cures that are being made by this remarkable new remedy are almost beyond belief.

A young lady from Attumwa, Iowa, for many years suffered from a bad case of eczema. Her face was a sight to behold; all covered with red blotches, pustules and pimples. So unsightly was her appearance she gave up all social life. Failing to find relief with doctors and remedies, she became despondent and discouraged. After a few weeks' treatment with liquid and ointment the scaly redness disappeared, pustules healed and she was entirely cured. A few months following her mother wrote that Amolox had done wonders for her daughter, and she was married last week.

This is only one of the many cases that are being reported in towns where Amolox has been introduced and its merits have become known. Amolox Ointment will quickly banish pimples, blackheads and all minor skin troubles. Bad cases of Eczema, Psoriasis, Tetter, and skin diseases lasting for years, should use both ointment and liquid to effect a cure. Trial size, 50c. Guaranteed by People's Drug Store.
